Baccalauréat Français International (BFI): <https://www.americansection.org/academics/fostering-intellectual-curiosity/oib-to-bfi>

The Baccalauréat Français International (BFI) was created by the French government to offer a genuinely bilingual education to its citizens living abroad or returning from overseas, as well as to foreigners studying in French schools around the world or residing in France for a significant period of time. It is a particularly demanding version of the French Baccalaureate.

After following a fully bilingual curriculum during their last two years of school, students take oral and written exams in English and French, each language having to be at a standard enabling them to work at ease in any subject at university level.
